Town gets on board for train station

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Elk Point town council agreed to get on board for the Elk Point Chamber of Commerce train station at last Monday's meeting, committing a $30,000 cash donation over three years and approximately an equal in-kind donation, such as installation of water and sewer lines, to the project.

Chamber president Sandy Smith gave council a brief history of the project, which started three years ago when the chamber decided to purchase a retired train station, move it to town and restore it. The restoration proved to be economically unfeasible, as did their second plan to build a train-station-style facility with meeting rooms and state-of-the-art features. Last spring, the chamber agreed they must simplify their plans and have now decided on an exterior replica of the original Elk Point CN Rail station, which will accommodate the tourist information centre and rental offices on the main floor.

Solar panels, a wind turbine and geothermal heating will mean "operating costs will be very small," Smith said. "This is a green project, and as the first of its kind in the area, we expect it to be a tourist attraction because of that." The upper floor, with elevator access, will be designed to accommodate classes learning about green power, she noted. "We plan to partner with the St. Paul Education Regional Division on that."

An ad hoc committee of the chamber was established at the March 19 meeting and has since gathered the additional information needed to complete the grant application and submit it prior to the March 31 deadline. Part of the required information is a list of sources of funds to match the $200,000 grant. The chamber agreed they could commit $30,000 over three years, and hoped that the town would commit the same amount, as well as in-kind help. The balance will come from donations and fundraising projects, Smith said.

Coun. Bernice Capjack said she felt the station would be "a definite asset to Elk Point. It will bring in tourists, and I like the idea of it being like the original. I remember that."

"It's been long awaited for," Coun. Dwayne Yaremkevich added. "I definitely support it."

"The world's going green," Coun Mark Gormley said. It's a great idea and ties in with the school."

CAPC welcomes RCMP's newest member

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

RCMP Cpl. Brad Lazicki, who recently returned to his old home town after more than two decades, received a warm welcome from the Community Advisory Policing Committee at last week's meeting. Cpl. Lazicki is the newest member at the Elk Point detachment as of Feb. 25, and Sgt. Darryl Eagles said he is glad to have him on board.

"We've been waiting a year and a half to fill this position. His first case was the arson at the Frog Lake band office, and it has been solved."

Sgt. Eagles was pleased to hear that Elk Point schools plan to have another anti-bullying presentation in September, because bullying prevention is once again in the detachment's performance plan for the coming year. Dealing with alcohol abuse is another objective, as is a crackdown on traffic violators.

"We've been hearing from all the communities that people are driving too fast. We're planning to have some kind of major traffic initiative once a month, dealing with speed, seat belts, vehicle inspections and even involving partners such as Fish and Wildlife."

F.G. Miller High School's vice-principal Cheri Lindquist told the CAPC that along with the anti-bullying sessions for students, they plan to have an evening session for parents from both schools, and may also have a drug and alcohol awareness session for the students.

A current problem at the high school, Lindquist says, is that students "seem too trusting with electronics, such as iPods and cellphones." Three iPods were stolen recently, but sharp-eyed students used their CSI skills to apprehend the culprits and retrieve the merchandise.

Town Coun. Mark Gormley, who is also a member of the fire department, asked regarding emergency access to the Iron Horse Trail. The RCMP has snowmobiles for winter access and patrols, but does not have ATVs for summer use. He was told that North East MuniCorr could provide the needed information.

Guy Genereux said Victim Services will hold their annual meeting on April 30, and would like to have a director from the Elk Point area. Anyone interested could contact him. Victim Services has just hired an assistant coordinator and are now receiving federal funding to help them serve underserved communities, and "possibly resolve issues with reaching victims of crime in those localities."

Genereux still hopes to have an Elk Point representative attend one of the P.A.R.T.Y. program sessions in St. Paul as a preliminary step to holding the program here.

Coun. Dick Millar said he also fully supports the project.

Total cost of the project is estimated at $508,000.

Town unfair, businessman says

A "very disappointed" local businessman told council he feels he has been treated unfairly, because he was required to pay in full for town-owned residential lots purchased through a realtor. "Is it true that the town is subsidizing lots for contractors?" he asked at the March 24 meeting.

Mayor Parrish Tung told him that a contractor who purchased eight lots "came when lots weren't moving, and in order to promote the lots, we gave them a deal, 10 per cent down and the balance on each lot to be paid when the house was sold." Three of the eight lots have now been paid for, and three other houses are still under construction, he noted.

"Winalta paid cash for their lots," the mayor added.

The same businessman also had a suggestion regarding 'conditions for businesses operating in town, which would regulate the hours those businesses would be open.

"Fishing licenses and driver's licenses have conditions, why don't business licenses?" he asked.

Mayor Tung replied that there is "no way we can dictate business hours. That's a business decision."

Small response to EDC call

Monday was the deadline for applications to sit on the Economic Development Board, with only three responses received. Council is now considering asking the people who were involved on the four focus groups if they would be interested in being part of the board.

Bob Bezpalko said matters like restaurant hours and traffic counts "are why the EDC is needed. We need to have the facts and the information and put it in digestible form, and promote it. We need to entice the businesses to make favourable decisions."

Bylaw passed

A bylaw which had its first reading last September has finally been completed. The bylaw, given second and third readings on March 24, allows the town to loan money to the M. D. of St. Paul Foundation, and town manager Myron Goyan recommended repayment of the $119,000 be made over a 20-year term. "It's basically a reserve fund," he noted, and would come from the town's capital reserves. The town and county of St. Paul will also be loaning money for the project, each municipality's share determined on a per capita basis.

Mayor Tung agreed that the loan could be used as collateral if the town needed money in the interim.

Recreation Coordinator

Terms of reference for the proposed recreation coordinator position have been obtained from other municipalities, and were handed out to council for them to give their input. The matter will be back on council's next agenda.

Spring clean-up

Planning is underway for a spring clean-up campaign in May. Additional garbage pickup for yard waste has been set for May 21 and 22, and the annual hazardous waste collection is slated for May 24.

The town is also planning to distribute a "How walkable is your community?" questionnaire with utility bills, asking residents to take a walk and then to rate the community on space available for walking, access to trails or paths, ease of crossing streets, behaviour of drivers, ease of following safety rules, and whether their walk was pleasant. The questionnaire also has space to list ideas for improving the community.

Water treatment upgrade

The town is applying for more funding for the water treatment plant upgrade. They have already been approved for $1 million, based on the original estimate of $1.7 million. The project is now priced at $3.2, of which 66.7 per cent should be covered by grant funding.

Council is also looking into a future 24/7 water supply line from the North Saskatchewan River to the water treatment plant, and research into the cost of a line will be undertaken shortly.

Superintendent plans to head into retirement

By JANANI WHITFIELD
Staff Writer

After 16 years spent in the division, Doug Yeo, superintendent of St. Paul Education Regional Division (SPERD), is packing it up and heading into retirement.

Yeo will be retiring in July of 2008, giving one year for the school board to appoint his successor.

"It's nice to have a direction to work towards. My direction is to prepare...for the new chapter in my life," he said.

He noted he's worked with excellent staff, which has made the job easier and which has helped him learn along the way. Now his key task is to mentor principals and the staff in central office, passing along the knowledge he's gained over the years.

In those years, Yeo has seen some major changes within the division, in areas such as programming, technology and facilities. For instance, with programming, new courses such as Career and Technology Studies (CTS) have come on board. Technology such as videoconferencing and smart boards are used in schools. The new Glen Avon school has been built in St. Paul and the province has announced funding this year for modernization of St. Paul Elementary School and Racette School.

One major trend he's noted in the division, a trend that's happened across Canada, is that student retention is getting better. "We've done a better job of hanging on to our kids," he said, explaining that this is in part due to the fact parents are putting more value on education now than ever before.

The division has faced and will continue to face challenges in making sure that there are safety nets in place to prevent kids from struggling or falling out of the system, he said. "That, I believe, is a continual thing."

One major accomplishment for the division as Yeo sees it is the fact it provides diversified learning - the division combines Catholic and public education, French education and brings together people of all different backgrounds in an integrated school system.

"That's why I'm very proud of St. Paul Education," he said. "My one wish would be for that to continue, to grow to strengthen."

Shifts in school administration

A few administrative changes are on the way for St. Paul Education Regional Division this year. Assistant superintendent Glen Brodziak will become the chief deputy superintendent of schools, while Patrick Rivard, the principal at St. Paul Elementary School, will become principal of St. Paul Alternate Education and assistant superintendent, heading up alternative programming.

St. Paul Elementary vice principal Marie Ann Hebert will take on principal duties while Nicole Hebert, currently a teacher in Ecole Mallaig School, will step into the vacant vice principal position.

More administrative changes will probably happen, and will likely be more definite by the end of May, said superintendent Doug Yeo.

Amyotte wins Alex Kurash Memorial award

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Elk Point Pee Wee Avalanche wound up their season last Wednesday with the presentation of the Alex Kurash Memorial Award.

Coach John Quinney said the annual award goes to a pee-wee-age player who demonstrates continued improvement, has a positive attitude, develops increased skills in skating, passing and shooting, has a desire to learn and is coachable. This year's winner, chosen by the coaching staff, is Dakota Amyotte.

The award presentation followed the team's year-end supper, at which Elk Point Minor Hockey president Jason Jenner, one of the team's assistant coaches, told the boys, "you worked hard and we had an awesome year. There are so many people to thank for the year and for all the work done at the arena during provincials. It was a huge success" Quinney listed his players and noted outstanding attributes for each.

"It's important to be humble," he told the boys, "to accept criticism and build on it, to understand what it takes. You had good heart and listened to what I had to say. You grew as hockey players and as people."

Quinney had gifts for assistant coaches Tyson Ockerman and Ryan MacDonald, timekeeper Jim Vinge and manager Donna Ockerman. The players presented gifts to Quinney and Jenner and autographed hockey sticks for Tyson and Ryan.

"It was great working with the boys, with John and Jason," Donna Ockerman said. "Everyone took our re-tiering in stride, and everyone pitched in to help out at the provincials."

WATER WELL MANAGEMENT

Monday, April 7, 2008 - 1:00 to 4:00 pm

FLAT LAKE HALL

Consider how your life would change if you lost your water supply!

Did you know that a poorly maintained water well can put your water supply at risk of contamination and reduce your well yield?

If you are one of the 600,000 rural Albertans who get their drinking water from a well, the key to ensuring your water supply is safe and secure is knowing how groundwater works and knowing your well and how to properly maintain it.

Proper water well siting, construction, maintenance and abandonment will help protect your well from biofouling and contamination, save you costly repairs, and ensure your well water yields are sustained over many years.

If you'd like to find out what you can do to protect your well, come to the free water well management workshop being hosted by the County of St. Paul No. 19 and the M.D. of Bonnyville with technical expertise provided by Alberta Agriculture and Food, Alberta Environment and Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration.

We'll be covering:

- Groundwater - how it works
- Water quality and quantity testing
- Well protection - protecting your well from contamination
- Basic well maintenance
- Well abandonment

If you'd like to attend, please pre-register by calling Jeremy at the County of St. Paul No. 19 Office (780) 645-3006 or Matt / George at the M.D. of Bonnyville Office (780) 826-3951.

Grab a nap, volunteers!

Hockey and figure skating are over for the season and the curling season all comes down to a funspiel this weekend. Winter sports have run their course, and now's the time all the volunteers involved in those activities can grab a quick nap.

No, they don't get the summer off. In many cases, the same people are involved in summer sports such as baseball, slowpitch and soccer. All those groups are going to be on the hunt for coaches and volunteers any day now, so take it easy while you can.

The geese are starting to arrive, a crow or two have been heard, gophers and skateboarders are coming out to play, and the snow is leaving amazingly fast.

The enthusiasts of summer activities can hardly wait for the lake ice to melt, the ball diamonds, golf greens and fairways to emerge from their thick, white winter blankets, and the campgrounds to unlock their gates.

Gardeners are already starting to prowl around the edges of their beds and borders watching for green shoots to emerge. We've already heard from one lady that her rhubarb was up... and that was a week or more before April Fool's Day. We have a week or two before sufficient snow is gone to rake lawns and clean up winter debris, so we'd best make the most of it.

Get some rest. You'll need it - summer's on its way!

WAY BACK WHEN...

Three-foot drifts, two medals, seven brides

HERE'S THE NEWS THAT MADE THE HEADLINES OF THE ELK POINT REVIEW AND ELK POINT LAKELAND REVIEW FOR THE WEEK OF APRIL 1 IN...

1988

A Palm Sunday blizzard left three-foot drifts in its wake and canceled or postponed numerous events. While providing much needed moisture for farmers and ranchers. Disposal of industrial park property was high on town council's agenda, with plans to move the 'for sale' sign to a more visible location and one business owner on hand to make an offer on 1.48 unserved acres to expand his business.

1993

It was a two-medal week for sports, with Charlene Anderson bringing home provincial gold from the Alberta Winterskate Junior Ladies Freeskate competition in Red Deer and the combined Bantam Elks and Bantam Lightning hockey team winning silver at the Value Drug Mart Spring Classic in Calgary. Seventeen Grade 9 students from Baie Comeau, Quebec arrived in Elk Point on the first part of an exchange program which would see local Grade 9s heading eastward at the end of April.

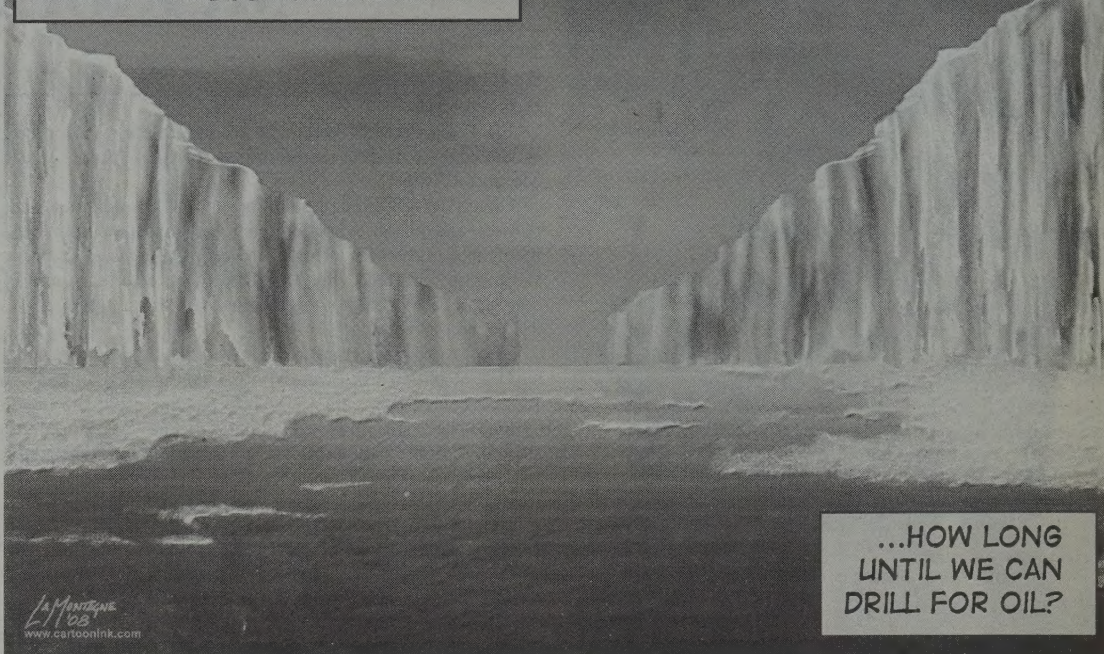

1998

There was romance times seven as Elk Point Community Choir and Friends presented "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" for five capacity crowds at their annual dinner theatre. Elk Point's oldest citizen, Grace Franks, was laid to rest at the age of 102.

2003

Elyse Anton-Roberts was the first-ever girl to win the Alex Kurash Award, as Elk Point Minor Hockey celebrated 30 years with a number of guest speakers in addition to the annual season windup festivities. Lakeland Regional Health Authority held their final meeting before dissolving into the new health Region 7 on April 1.

GUEST COLUMN

It's all in a name

Today is April 1st and to some people, it is known as "April Fool's Day". To these people, they have fun playing jokes or saying something that isn't quite right just to tease people. And then ... they say "April Fools" when they have caught you into believing what they have said or done. So therefore, "April Fools" can be classified as a name you may receive on this day. Fortunately, this can happen only until noon, and then it is back to a regular day.

Speaking of a regular day, and regular people, there is a story told about an earthquake in 1989 that happened in Armenia that killed over 30,000 people in four minutes. A distraught father went in frantic search of his son. He reached his son's school only to find that it had been reduced to a pile of rubble. But he was driven by his promise to his son, "No matter what, I'll always be there for you!" He visualized the corner where his son's classroom would be, rushed there, and started to dig through the debris, brick by brick. Others came on the scene - the fire chief, then the police - warning him of fires and explosions, and urging him to leave the search to the emergency crews. But he tenaciously carried on digging. Night came and went, and then, in the 38th hour of digging, he thought he heard his son's voice.

"Armand!" he called out.

Then he heard, "Dad!?! It's me, Dad! I told the other kids not to worry. I told 'em that if you were alive, you'd save me, and when you saved me, they'd be saved. There are 14 of us left out of 33. When the building collapsed, it made a wedge, like a triangle, and it saved us."

"Come on out, boy!"

The Elk Point Review publishes a variety of opinions as a contribution to debate on matters of public concern. Unsigned editorials express the view of this newspaper's editorial board which includes the Publisher and the Editor. Signed pieces express the view of the individual writer.

"No, Dad! Let the other kids out first, 'cause I know you'll get me! No matter what, I know you'll be there for me!"

EASTHOPE

From the PCSS desk

If it is all in a name, was the dad in this story a dad because his name was Dad? Think about it. What about a regular person who is called a mom? Imagine a situation where a mom goes into an office and is asked the following question: "What is your occupation?" The mom hesitates, uncertain how to classify herself. "What I mean is," explained the recorder, "do you have a job or are you just a ....?"

"Of course I have a job," snapped the woman. "I'm a mom."

The recorder then emphatically states; "We don't list 'Mom' as an occupation, 'housewife' covers it."

You are probably saying ... "Oh my, there is something missing in this attitude!" O.K., the Mom could have said; "I'm a Research Associate in the field of Child Development and Human Relations."

The clerk might then ask another question. "Might I ask", said the clerk with new interest, "just what do you do in your field?"

The mom could then reply, "I have a continuing program of research, (what mother doesn't?) in the laboratory and in the field (indoors and outdoors). I'm working for my Masters, (first the Lord and then the whole family) and already have four credits (four children). Of course, the job is one of the most demanding in the human ties, (any mother care to disagree?) and I often work 14 hours a day, (24 is more like it). But the job is more challenging than most run-of-the-mill careers and the rewards are more of a satisfaction rather than just money."

So from this example, can a mom with the name of Mom have high importance by using that name or do we have to assign another occupation title to give that person recognition?

From both these examples, being called Dad or Mom is only verbal classification. What really matters is the person who has that name. Therefore, it is NOT all in a name!

Living with MS - women cope with life in continuing care facilities

By MALLORY HOULE
Staff Writer

Since 2003, Helen Kumpula has resided in the J.P. Decosse Auxiliary in St. Paul.

At 57, she is the second youngest person at the facility. Kumpula cannot live independently—she is suffering from the secondary-progressive form of multiple sclerosis (MS) and is unable to care for herself.

In 1981, Kumpula was diagnosed with relapsing-remitting MS, a disease that affects the brain and spinal cord. Signals that are normally transmitted between the brain, spinal cord and the rest of the body can be effectively severed, causing any number of problems from blurred vision to fatigue to paralysis.

Over the years, Kumpula's disease progressed into a more debilitating version of MS. Now she has had to adapt to living with individuals many years older than her. The result has been a feeling of social isolation. Apart from meal times, she has little to do with her fellow residents.

"The seniors can't hear me when I talk to them," she explained. "They spend most of their time talking about things that happened 25 years ago."

Kumpula has adopted a routine of solitary activities, such as doing puzzles and watching television, to keep herself occupied. She admits that she would like to see a facility specifically for the physically impaired established.

"If I won the lottery, I would have a place for people with just physical disabilities," she said. "There's no care for just the physically impaired."

Caroline Seniuk is just two years older than Kumpula. She was diagnosed with MS when she was 19 and has been living with the disease for about 40 years.

Seniuk's condition has not progressed to the point where she is confined to a wheelchair. She is still able to walk and drive short distances. Currently, she is residing at the Elk Point Heritage Lodge but she returns to her farmhouse weekly to do laundry.

"My husband passed away in December 2006," she said. "He was my caregiver and I moved here after he died."

Seniuk says that she maintains a positive approach to life, despite some physical hindrances.

"I can come and go as I please, I've got three really good friends that go for coffee with me and I wouldn't be able to get out without those girls," she said. "When you get out, that helps your outlook."

In addition to solid friendships and visits from family members, Seniuk explained her current medication has improved her quality of life immensely.

She has been prescribed Copaxone by her neurologist and, according to her, the weekly doses have helped to keep many of her symptoms and previous unpredictable attacks at bay.

"I'm even reading again," she said, sounding elated. "I couldn't do that before with my eyes the way they were. They've really cleared up."

Like Kumpula, Seniuk would like to see facilities for the physically impaired become a more common occurrence in rural areas.

"I doubt it will ever happen though," she said. "There's no funding. This is a little town, but you'd have no problem getting access to specific facilities in a bigger city."

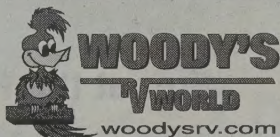

However, Seniuk will not move to a larger urban centre because she does not want to leave her friends behind.

"Being with people I know is important. They help me through this. When I'm with them I never complain about myself. We talk about everything else and stay away from (the topic of) disease," she said. "If you're still breathing and still this side of the ground, there's nothing to complain about."

The MS Society will be organizing an MS Awareness Day in both the St. Paul and Elk Point communities. Anyone who wishes to obtain further information about programs and services for people with MS and the latest MS research can attend the session respectively on April 2 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the St. Therese Health Centre and on April 3 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Elk Point Healthcare Centre.

Minor hockey winds up season

By VICKI BROOKER

Review Staff

"It's been a great year," Elk Point Minor Hockey president Jason Jenner told players, coaches and family members at the association's wind-up potluck on March 20.

"Make sure you thank all the people who got you here," he reminded the players. "It takes a lot of extra help and I hope you appreciate it."

Much of that help focused on the Pee wee D Provincials tournament, which received support from the town and county as well as from numerous individuals and businesses, Jenner said. "Mr. Danyluk sold $3,200 on the loonie stick, and we had sponsors from near and far. The Provincial tournament looks like netting around $25,000, and it wouldn't have happened without everybody's help."

Reviewing the season, Jenner listed the new Zamboni and the new time clock for the arena. The association worked its first casino, and Jenner said, "that's what it takes to make everything work." Parents were happy to hear that the association has decided to cut their number of bingos in half, and to start a cash calendar.

"We're going to try to keep a good balance, and to keep the arena filled up."

Jenner added special thanks to all the hockey moms: "we know you are the backbone of minor hockey."

Each coach had the opportunity to introduce their players and give a brief rundown on the year just completed.

Bantam Girls Storm coach Brent Becker had four brand-new players this year, and said, "we started off looking for goalie. I told my new manager, Brenda Poitras, to go find me a goalie, but Robyn Maennchen stood up and asked if she could try [the position]. Geoff and Brendan Bishop coached her, and it worked out well."

Becker said that overall, "there was only one game that we weren't in the game."

This is the first year that Storm has been a bantam team, Becker said. "When we started in this league, we always played midget, but this year we moved to bantam and only had two over-age players. Next year we play midget." Becker added that the league has now expanded to 32 teams.

Pee wee Avalanche coach John Quinney had "a fairly large group, with a lot of new peewees. We kind of did well, and made it through the season with great ambition. It turned out well." He thanked the parents involved in the Provincials tournament for their volunteerism and added special thanks to team manager Donna Ockerman, who added a few comments of her own.

"They did awesome. We were second in the league, we had the 'A' win in one tournament and the 'B' in another." Ockerman added thanks to "our number one fan, Doug Bassett."

Jenner later noted, "If it weren't for Doug, we wouldn't be where we are today."

Atom Avalanche coach Dave Nazarchuk said that team was short-handed as far as players go, this year. "We did play a few games with just one guy on the bench and three coaches." Some of the players were beginners this year, and one of them wasn't even familiar with the necessary equipment, Nazarchuk said, "But by Christmas, Han Lo [Pittlejohn] was our most improved player."

Nazarchuk admits the team "didn't have the greatest year, but we only had two players registered to start. I got on the phone and called up novice and overage players. We started in Tier 2, but when we moved to Tier 3 for five games, we wowed everybody. Then we moved back to Tier 2. I'd rather lose by two or three goals than win by 15."

With a short bench, players such as Dylan Odgaard, Brandon Bourne and Colin Nazarchuk "put on a lot of miles," with Colin as the team's top scorer, racking up over 100 points during the season.

The team did very well in their league's final tournament, and came close in every game. They played one round of provincials, and also won the 'A' side of a tournament in Glendon Nazarchuk said that an added attraction at the tournament was a tug-of-war, from blue line to blue line. "Our kids won $100 - it's nice to see them finish the season like that. It was a really good year and a lot of fun."

"Dave puts his heart into every shift," Dwayne Odgaard, who shared Atoms assistant coaching duties for the team with Al Ference, said. "We had a lot of new players, but the veterans helped them learn the game."

Jeannene Ference was Atom team manager.

Odgaard also coaches the Novice Hurricanes, and reported "a year with a lot of first-year players. It took a while to jell, but the kids made a lot of friends and had a lot of fun. He thanked assistant coaches Sean McGee, Jason Barber and John Grykuliak and manager Donna McGee for their help.

McGee said the team's strategy was "to go out and try to win periods. They always had smiles on their faces when they came off the ice. They had a lot of fun."

Manager Sheana Pankiw reported on the Micro Novice Tornadoes, who had nine players this year and were coached by Kim Hawryluk and Christoph Ludlage.

"We had a really hard start, we weren't winning games, but by the end, the first year players were getting hat tricks. They really liked practices and worked hard,"

Workshop aims to help residents protect wells

Have you had your well water tested in the last two years? Have old unused wells on your property been properly sealed and decommissioned? Have you ever shock chlorinated your well? Do you know the age and depth of your well, or how it was constructed?

According to Alberta water specialist Ken Williamson, if you answered "No" to any of these questions, your groundwater supplies could be at risk. Despite the fact that 600,000 rural Albertans rely on groundwater for drinking and household use, few know that proper well construction, siting and maintenance can help protect wells from contamination.

In order to be sure your water well is safe, you should also know how far your septic system is from your well. Septic tanks should be regularly pumped and inspected. You should also disinfect your well on a regular basis.

It is also important to regularly test and document water quality and quantity in your well. By keeping good records, you can see how your water quality and well performance has changed over time. Proper well maintenance and operation can save you costly repairs and ensure your well water yields are sustained over many years.

If you'd like to find out if your groundwater is at risk and what more you can do to protect your well, you can attend a water well management workshop, which the County of St. Paul and the M.D. of Bonnyville are hosting, with technical expertise supplied by Alberta Agriculture and Food, Alberta Environment and Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration. The workshop, which is free to attend, runs from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. at Flat Lake Hall on Monday, April 17. This hands-on workshop is meant to help water well owners better understand and manage precious groundwater supplies.

People who would like to attend are asked to pre-register, which will allow county officials to look up drilling reports for wells. Interested people can register by calling Jeremy at the County of St. Paul No. 19 office at 780-645-3006 or by calling Matt or George at the M.D. of Bonnyville office at 780-826-3951.

County offering gopher control product

The Richardson Ground Squirrel, commonly referred to as a gopher, is a pesky and destructive rodent that infests thousands of acres of crop, hay and pasture land. These rodents feed mainly on plants but will also consume insects such as grasshoppers and other smaller rodents, including mice and voles.

The adults emerge in early spring as soon as the snow melts and they feed on whatever vegetation is available. They produce one litter of six to 10 young, that are born in April or May, and these soon emerge from the burrows and feed on the green vegetation that is present in hay and pasture fields. The best time to control this rodent is early in the spring before the green grass starts to grow.

The province of Alberta has been granted a one-year emergency permit to sell two per cent liquid strychnine that can be mixed with a grain bait to assist farmers in controlling severe infestations of this rodent. The liquid strychnine will be available from County and MD offices, including the County of St. Paul and the M.D. of Bonnyville, starting at the end of March until the end of July 2008. This product will only be sold to bona fide farmers who will have to provide the legal land location where they will be using the product, and the number of acres they intend to treat. The farmers will be asked to complete a product evaluation form after they treat their fields to indicate how well the product worked for them.

Oldies are goodies @Elk Point Municipal Library

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Look up, look way up at Elk Point Municipal Library, and you will find treasures of the past.

The top shelf contains a lineup of long-ago favourites, some dating back to the very beginning of this community, some written when the Elk Point area was still untrodden wilderness. Other timeworn treasures are proudly displayed in the library's glass showcase.

Western novels, many of them by Zane Grey, sit beside Jane Austen's "Sense and Sensibility," dated 1899 a "History of the Northwest Rebellion" dated 1886, Bram Stoker's 1897 "Dracula" and Daniel Defoe 1925 novel, "Robinson Crusoe."

Many of these books are familiar to the library's older patrons, who enjoyed these stories as children, such as a 1909 edition of "Anne of Avonlea," a 1915 "Pollyanna Grows Up" and from that same decade, "Little Men," "Eight Cousins" and "Aunt Jo's Scrap Bag," all by Louisa May Alcott.

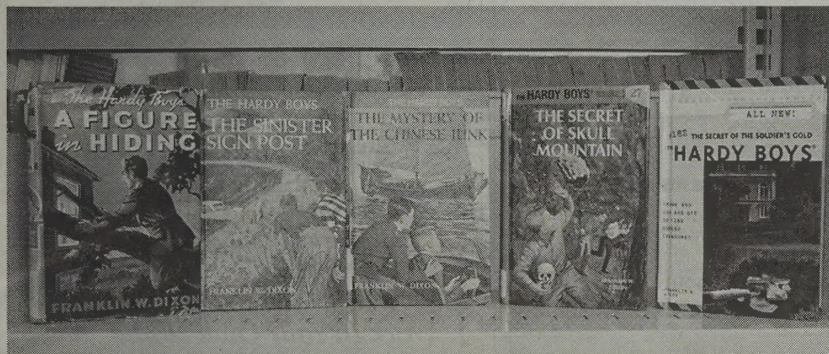

A pair of cookbooks show the changes in household management over the years. "Mrs. Beeton's All About Cooking" published in 1903, contains recipes for delicacies such as Hare Soup and Stuffed Pigeons, with a flyleaf fold-out showing how to set an elegant table for 12. A Good Housekeeping cookbook from 1942 contains newer delicacies, that still bring a chuckle to today's cooks.

Today's youngsters are still enjoying books from the same series that entertained their grandparents, such as Nancy Drew and the Hardy Boys. The library spans more than 70 years with the latter, their oldest Hardy Boys novel dating back to 1937. Their oldest Nancy Drew is dated 1940, and has a 98-cent price written on the flyleaf.

Library assistant Nicole Labrie displays two treasured oldies with woodcut design covers, Nellie McClung's "The Black Creek Stopping House," written in 1919, and Daniel Defoe 1925 "Robinson Crusoe."

Youngsters through the generations have enjoyed the Hardy Boys mysteries, these, from left to right, dated 1937, 1950, 1960, 1975 and 2002. Between 1950 and 2002, the price of these novels increased from $1.29 to $15.95.

Scholarship honours for FGM seniors

Two members of F. G. Miller High School's Grade 12 class have received scholarships and complimentary back packs from the University of Alberta. Erin Lindquist, right, who has applied to the U of A for General Arts next year, relieved a $1,500 scholarship for academic excellence and an additional $1,000 toward tuition at the U of A arts faculty. Terri White, left, who plans to study kinesiology, received a $1,000 scholarship for academic excellence.

Servus supports groups

Servus Credit Union manager Rod Randall handed out donations to three local groups last week. At top right, he presented $387.81 from a United Way fundraiser to Erin Wells of Jack and Jill Playschool. Top left, he gave Mark Gormley of the David Thompson Brigade committee $500 toward the celebration, and at bottom left, Cathy Ockerman of Elk Point 4-H Multi Club accepted $500 toward camps and anal club jackets for the 4-H members.
